

Mark Mywords started his musical journey with DJing and producing a little over 25 years ago. It took until 2011 before his first records were shared with the world, but after a string of releases on renowned labels such as Tronic, BlaBla, Toolroom and Rawthentic, his DJ career started to gain some traction. Releases on Gabriel Ananda's infamous labels Basmati records and Soulful Techno really put him on the map and by then everything started to fall into place. More and more gigs followed. First mostly in Mark's home country The Netherlands at venues like Paradiso, Sugar Factory, Thuishaven and Radion and festivals like 18hour festival, Burning man NL and The Gardens of Babylon. He even landed a residency in one of Amsterdam's oldest and biggest clubs Melkweg, which has been going on for almost 7 years. During this time Mark kept getting at it in the studio, resulting in over a 100 releases. This made sure international interest sparked and Mark got to play in numerous countries all over Europe. Deeply embedded in the Burning Man culture, Mark and his wife also started a festival series called Ankkleideraum, heavily inspired by the burning man principles. On top of that, he launched a new downtempo concept in 2024 called 'The Noodle Lounge' together with his musical brother from another mother Ed Noodle.

A little over 40 now, more and more grey hairs start to appear in his trademark haircut, each one of them a reminder of the great amount of adventures he went on with his crowd. Sometimes with rolling downtempo grooves and atmospheres so deep you think you need your diving gear, on other occasions with high energy melodic tracks that push your hands towards the ceiling. And sometimes with grittiness so dirty it makes you pull a face like your dance partner just farted after holding it in for a week. However the situation, this DJ got the perfect records for it.
